CNET let an AI write 77 money articles. 41 needed corrections.

From Nov 2022: AI explainers, quietly.

AI drafts

Publish

No label

Byline: "CNET Money Staff."

January 2023: Futurism noticed.

77

AI-written stories since November 2022

"What Is Compound Interest?"

THE AI SAID

You'd earn $10,300

THE REAL ANSWER

You'd earn $300

Some phrases were "not entirely original."

> Several corrections flagged copied wording, which was replaced.

CNET's own review:

41 / 77

stories that needed corrections

Tool paused. Byline changed to "CNET Money."

> Editor-in-chief Connie Guglielmo.

Not ChatGPT. An internal AI engine.

> The brand of AI wasn't the problem. Publishing without an AI-specific check was.

YOUR CHECKLIST

Before AI writes for you:

1. Recalculate every number
2. Run a plagiarism check
3. Label AI help clearly

Share with your team ↓