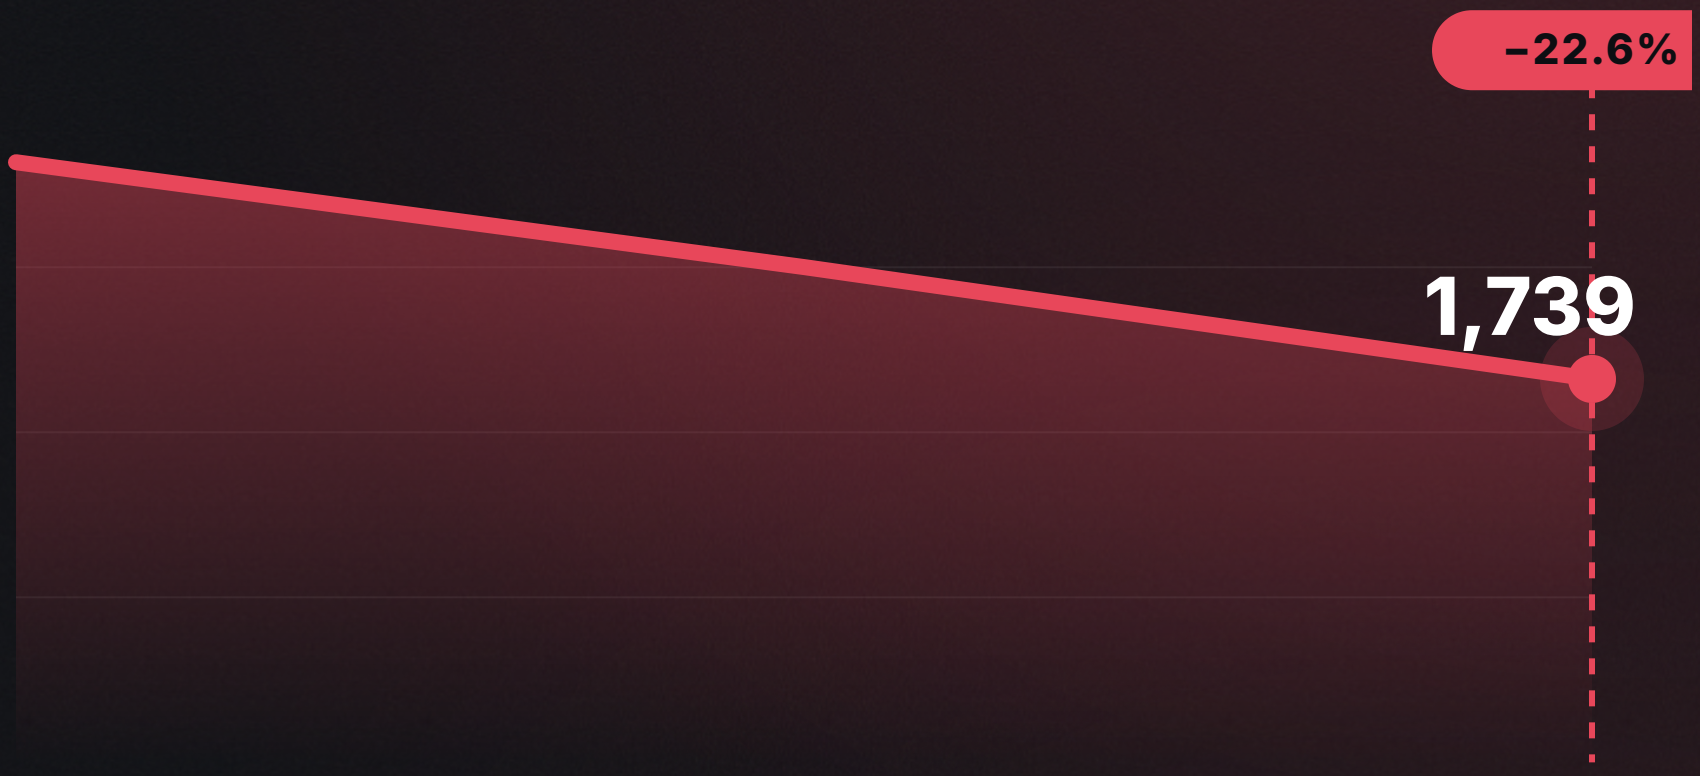
BLACK MONDAY

October 19, 1987: the Dow lost 22.6% in one day.

@bino_da_producer

Swipe →

508 points in one session



Dow closes, 1987 (Aug 25 peak ≈ 2,722)

The biggest one-day percentage drop in the Dow's history.

> Still standing.

It wasn't just Wall Street.

$1.71 trillion

estimated worldwide losses, October 1987

Computers kept selling as prices fell.

> 'Portfolio insurance' sold futures into the drop. Economists still debate how much it mattered.

Then, slowly, the market came back.

Oct 1987 — Crash

Nov 1987 — S&P bottoms

Jul 26, 1989 — S&P back at its high

Who got hurt most?

HELD ON

Back to even by mid-1989 (S&P 500)

FORCED TO SELL

Locked in the loss

The danger isn't the drop. It's being a forced seller.

Your bad-day plan:

1. Money you need within a few years: not in stocks
2. Keep an emergency fund
3. Write your rules before the scary day